Historical Note:

The William and Mary Quarterly is published in January, April, July, and October by the Omohundro Institute of Early American History and Culture, Williamsburg, Virginia. The journal originated in 1892, making it one of the oldest scholarly journals in the United States. Currently in its Third Series, the Quarterly is the leading journal for the study of early American history and culture. It ranges chronologically from Old World-New World contacts to about 1820. Geographically, it focuses on North America - from New France and the Spanish-American borderlands to British America and the Caribbean - and extends to Europe and West Africa. Although grounded in history, it welcomes works from all disciplines - for example, literature, law, political science, anthropology, archaeology, material culture, cultural studies - bearing on the early American period.

Approximately 125 manuscripts are submitted to the WMQ each year. About one in eight manuscripts is accepted after in-house evaluation and thorough peer review. Accepted articles receive close substantive editing. Extensive backlogs of articles are avoided; ideally, articles are published within about a year of acceptance. The Quarterly aims to be accessible to all: the work of graduate students, junior faculty, and unaffiliated scholars is welcome. Three prizes are available to Quarterly authors, and many of the journal's articles attract considerable reprint interest.

Circulation presently stands at about 3,700, distributed almost equally between individuals and institutions. One in ten subscribers is foreign. Further information about this individual or organization may be available in the Special Collections Research Center Wiki:

Acc. 2010.295 contains correspondence between William and Mary librarian Earl Gregg Swem, Wilbur C. Hall, and George Nicholas about publishing articles by Nicholas and Hall in the William and Mary Quarterly from 1937 to 1938.

Acc. 2010.340 contains an article by John Bigelow entitled "The Works of Benjamin Franklin" edited by College of William and Mary Librarian Earl Gregg Swem. The article may have been published in the William and Mary Quarterly .
