Historical Information

In 1795, a Richmond Indulged Meeting was organized under the care of the White Oak Swamp Monthly Meeting. When the Weyanoke Monthly Meeting (formerly known as the White Oak Swamp Monthly Meeting) was disbanded in 1841, its members joined the Richmond Particular or Preparative Meeting, which then became part of the Cedar Creek Monthly Meeting. In 1844, the Richmond Meeting was suspended under an agreement that the Cedar Creek Monthly Meeting would meet occasionally in Richmond. By 1854, the Monthly Meeting was only meeting in Richmond. In 1875, the Cedar Creek Monthly Meeting officially changed its name to the Richmond Monthly Meeting.

The Richmond Monthly Meeting is part of the Baltimore Yearly Meeting.

Scope and Content

Records, 1849-2004 (bulk 1914-2004), of the Richmond Friends Meeting, including committee files, correspondence, financial records, historical materials, membership records, minutes, newsletters, publications, and reports that document Quaker history and tradition in Richmond and Virginia. These records also detail the meeting's involvement in the war tax resistance movement, helping war refugees since World War I with the American Friends Service Committee, and social issues, such as same-sex marriage and terminal illness.
