Historical Information

During the colonial period the governor appointed customs officials (naval officers) directly, but this practice ended following independence. During its session begun in October 1776, the General Assembly passed an act creating customs districts, providing for the election of naval officers to serve in each district, and for fixing duties and ascertaining fees. The governor issued commissions to the naval officers following their election by the General Assembly. Each officer was assisted by one or more assistants, called searchers, who registered vessels as they arrived in port, examined and described their cargoes, and noted to whom the goods were consigned. The naval officers and their assistants also were responsible for registering goods to be exported. The collection of customs by individual states ended in 1790, when the government of the United States assumed that function.

Naval Officer districts were created for the Accomac, Elizabeth River, Lower James River, Northampton, Rappahannock River, South Potomac River, Upper James River and the York River.

Scope and Content

Naval Officer records include the following: Returns of goods imported and exported, 1778-1789; Office of the Searcher permits and returns, 1787-1789; Ship registrations, 1785-1989; State Boats Liberty and Patriot, 1782-1789; and Miscellaneous, 1782-1789.

The duties of the naval officers required them to examine goods and clear them for import or export. Entering and exiting vessels include shipments to and from ports in other states, Canada, Europe and the Caribbean. Entering vessels often included imports of ballast, cheese, chocolate, cloth, coffee, cordage, flour, glass and glassware, hemp, iron, molasses, nails, oil, oranges, sails and rigging, salt, snuff, spirits (ale, beer, brandy, cider, gin, port, rum, whiskey, wine), sugar, tea, and woolens, and occasionally may include items such as books, coaches and phaetons. Exports often included bacon, corn, flaxseed, flour, ginseng, grain, lard, lumber, oats, peas, pork and tobacco.

APA 300 Series IV: State Boats, 1782-1789.

Extent

Extent: .70 cubic feet (2 boxes)

Scope and Content

State Boat records, 1782-1789, include accounts, correspondence, payrolls and receipts for the Boat Liberty and Schooner Patriot, which were used by naval officers in the exercise of their duties. Accounts and receipts for provisions and supplies include items such as buckets, candles, canvas, clothing, cordage, cutlery, foodstuf (beef, flour, pork, potatoes, salt), guns, lanterns, lead, nails, oars, oil, paint, planks, pots and pans, rope, shovels, spirits (brandy, rum), tar, tools, turpentine, and twine. Also includes payments to tradesmen such as blacksmiths, bricklayers, carpenters, caulkers, ironworkers, and joiners, for repairs to and maintenance of the state boats. Payrolls include date, name, station, days and months of service, and pay.

The Boat Liberty was commanded by Lieutenant Micheal James, and Commodore James Barron mastered the Schooner Patriot and also served as paymaster and victualer for both ships. During its session begun in October 1788, the General Assembly directed that the boats be sold.
