Administrative Information

Biographical / Historical

Student government at Longwood University came into existence in 1916, early in the tenure of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman. To ensure a stellar reputation for then-State Normal School for Women, according to Longwood historian Richard Couture, Dr. Jarman placed the governance of the school firmly in the hands of the students and ingrained in them the ideal that the best discipline was self-discipline. In 1932, the House Council was formed. Representatives of each dormitory hall were elected and given the responsibility of enforcing rules and regulations on their respective halls. Additionally, in the early 1960s, a Judicial Council was formed and given the task of passing judgement on those students who broke the rules. The duties and responsibilities of the Student Government Association have evolved over the years, but the system which began over 100 years ago is still in existence today.
