Biographical Information

Jeffrey T. Chamberlain taught French in the Department of Modern and Classical Languages at George Mason University from 1983 until his death in 2009. Originally from Bridgeport, Connecticut, he completed a bachelor's degree at the Capital University in Columbus, Ohio, in 1971, a master's degree from the University of Rhode Island in 1973 and a doctorate degree from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 1982. His first teaching position was at the University of Louisville in Kentucky teaching French. He began his career at George Mason in 1983 as an assistant professor teaching French linguistics and Latin and became an associate professor in 1988. He also served the Department of Modern and Classical Languages as associate chair for four years and then as chair for eight years. In 2000 he was appointed university marshal by President Alan Merten and served in that capacity until 2008. Chamberlain's love for music and the French language are evident in this collection which includes vinyl records in both English and French from a variety of genres, most notably classical and popular.
