Administrative Information

Conditions Governing Access

This collection is open for research during scheduled appointments. Researchers must complete the Washington Library's Special Collections and Archives Registration Form before access is provided. The library reserves the right to restrict access to certain items for preservation purposes.

Preferred Citation

Scope and Contents

The Historical Photograph Collection is largely comprised of materials created by or for the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association. Some of the earliest photographs of the estate were created and sold to visitors by the Association as a means of income. Those efforts helped to establish an important collection of 19th century views. The collection spans the 1850s to 2000s and includes over 140 linear feet of analog material providing a visual history of the Mansion, outbuildings, tombs, grounds, events, visitors, collection objects, personnel, and changes throughout the estate.

Custodial History

Items in this collection were either created by or under contract by the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association or acquired by gift and purchase from various sources. Materials are added to the collection as they are acquired. For additional information please contact the Manager of Visual Resources.

Arrangement

The Historical Photograph Collection is an artificial collection organized in functional order. Items are first arranged by subject and then subsequently by media format and size.

Music played an important part in the life of the Mount Vernon household. The harpsichord, which Washington ordered from London, stands today where it did when his beloved foster-daughter, Nellie Custis, played for him. Returned by Nellie's descendants, it was the first of a steadily growing collection of Washington memorabilia that the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union has acquired by gift, loan or purchase. 53-4831."

Extent Black and white photographic print of the Virginia Building (replica of Mount Vernon) resting on supports in Santa Venetia, California. The replica was built for and featured at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco in 1915. According to an article in the Petaluma Argus Courier (13 April 1928) - At the conclusion of the exposition the building was purchased by promoters of Santa Venetia, which was slated to be developed as a pleasure resort, and had the structure picked up and ferried from San Francisco to Santa Venetia. In the last few years the building had been allowed to fall into decay and was practically in ruins when finally a fire wiped it out on 12 April 1928.

Extent Photographic print of William H. Burgess standing under the colonnade at Mount Vernon, c. 1890. Burgess was a bricklayer who worked on multiple projects for the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association from 1885-1893 including repairs to the tomb, Mansion foundation, and deer park wall. A note from Harrison H. Dodge written in pencil on the reverse reads: W. H. Burgess who (when apprentice bricklayer aged 18) helped build the New Tomb at Mt. Vernon, and was present (April 19, 1831) when all remains in the Old Tomb were transferred to the New. He then saw Washington's face when the leaden casket was opened by the family -- I wish to attest the adjoining statement concerning Burgess for I heard it from his own lips many, many times when he was employed by me on repair work at Mt. Vernon from 1885-1893. Harrison H. Dodge, Supt. Mt. Vernon, March 31, 1897. An additional note: I attest the truth of the above statement, Jas. [James] Young, Asst. Supt., May 16, 1926. The photographer's stamp appears on the reverse.

The ad is illustrated with two men in suits in the foreground along with other visitors in front of Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon, copyright 1910 by Hartz, Schaffer & Marx. In the background is a partial view of an African American guard. The guard is circled in red pencil with an arrow pointing to an accompanying note. The note read, 'Will says Chas. Simms or Eaton Hammond, May-1910.' Note: Charles Simms doesn't become a tomb guard until 1913 and E. Hammond passes away in 1906. In 1910, Thomas Braxton served as the tomb guard. There is no evidence that any particular guard is represented in the illustration but if so, it would likely be Braxton.

Extent Photographic print of Garfield (Jesse) Duvall removing paint from the colonnade at Mount Vernon. Photograph taken for an 1956 article in the Providence Sunday Journal. An accompanying typescript caption reads: 'Garfield Duvall, a member of the shop maintenance staff, who has been in the employ of the Association for forty-five years, removes paint from a colonnade cornice in preparation for repainting. These columns are restorations. The work here was a part of the larger project of removing all paint from the colonnades and three of the Mansion elevations. Laboratory examination of paint chips removed from the Mansion reveal twenty coats of paint, with nine intervening strata of sand. See Annual Report 1956.'

Extent 7 3/4 in. x 10 3/16 in.

Extent Pencil sketch on paper, by Mr. (Charlie) McDermott portraying visit of President Rutherford B. Hayes and first lady Mrs. Hayes at the wharf landing at Mount Vernon. Also portrayed are the artist Mr. McDermott and Susan E. J. Hudson, Vice Regent for Connecticut. A handwritten note on the reverse by Mrs. Hudson notes, "Unexpected visit of Pres. & Mrs. Hays (sp) at Mt. Vernon while Mrs. Halsted (Vice Regent for New Jersey) and I was there on committee work. S. E. J. Hudson, June 18-1878 [possibly date Mrs. Hudson arrived for committee work, not date of the Hayes' arrival]." She also notes that the cats and dog followed us on my walk. Local newspaper reports and a letter from Mrs. Halsted describe President Hayes and Mrs. Hayes arriving at Mount Vernon on Saturday, June 22, spending the night in the Mansion (staying in the Lafayette Room now referred to as the Blue Room), attending a service at Pohick Church on the following day before returning to Washington, D. C. Monday morning.

Extent Stereoscopic view of the Mansion taken from the southeast lawn, photograph by William England, 1859. England photographed sites of North America for the London Stereoscopic Company for a series of stereographs on American views. The view includes three figures - an African-American male standing with his foot resting on a large stone, next to him a woman sits on the ground and a white male stands in the distance with the south facade of the Mansion in the background. This trio of models appear in several other views taken by England. Mounted on cream board. The front of the card mount features a printed caption, 'No. 204.-The Home of Washington, Mount Vernon.' The reverse of the card bears a patriotic graphic of an eagle, shield, arrows and a banner reading United States of America. The caption describes in brief the history of the Mansion, the interiors, and the setting of the estate.

Extent 6 15/16 in. x 3 7/16 in.

Extent Interior view of the northeast corner in the Lafayette room at Mount Vernon, circa 1878. The view includes the fireplace, a portion of the bedstead, and other furnishings. Mounted on orange board. The publisher's imprint on the front of the stereograph mount reads: N. G. Johnson, Photographer, 309 9th St., Washington, D. C. Only Authorized Publisher of Mount Vernon Views. The label adhered on the reverse reads: Pennsylvania Room, Mt. Vernon Mansion, A guest chamber in Washington's time containing furniture used by Washington at his Headquarters at Morristown, N. J., including his writing desk. Contrary to the attribution on the reverse of the card, the slant-front writing desk was given to Mount Vernon with a history of having been owned by George Washington. There is, however, no evidence to substantiate this claim.

Unit Date 1866-1878

Graphic Materials HPC - Stereographs - Box 2 (box)

Language English.

Creator Gardner, Alexander, 1821-1882

Extent 6 15/16 in. x 3 7/16 in.

Extent Stereoscopic view of the circle storehouse formerly called the 'Butler's House.' Two men are nearby on the Mansion circle - one is seated on a stump and the other is leaning against a hitching post. While missing Alexander Gardner's usual printed listed on the reverse, when compared to other stereographs in the collection, we know this stereograph is No. 33 in a group of 40 views. Mounted on peach board. 'Butlers House and Magnolia' are scripted in ink on the reverse.

Extent 7 in. x 3 1/2 in.

Extent Stereographic view of Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon, color photomechanical print. Edmund Parker, tomb guard, stands next to the iron gates at the entrance to the vault. Text printed directly onto the reverse of the cardboard mount reads: No. 702. Mt. Vernon, Va., Gen. Washington's Tomb. The tomb to which Washington's remains were removed from the old family vault in 1831, stands a few hundred yards from the house, near a wooded ravine. Visitors pass it as they ascend from the wharf to the house. It is of plain brick, which, behind an iron grating, contains two sarcophagi with the remains of George Washington (1732-99) and his wife Martha (1730-1808) [correct life dates, 1731-1802]. The whole civilized world paid tribute to Washington's memory, when he had sped the scene whose sorest need of his service had vanished, but his best eulogy was the grief of the united millions, who had gradually become impressed by the beauty of a life devoted to their welfare. Washington left behind him a unity of states, too firmly compacted to perish with himself, and it is gratifying to know what popular confidence rewarded him in his declining years for all that he, "The greatest of good men, and the best of great men" had accomplished. A8723. A note ink reads: Presented by C. C. Floyd of Arlington 3/10/50.

Washington's Tomb, as seen in the picture, is at the foot of a little knoll, a couple of hundred yards from his home, Mt. Vernon. In this tomb reposes the mortal remains of George and Martha Washington. Through the open iron door can be seen the stone escarpments of the two tombs. It is visited as a matter of courtesy to the American nation, by all the great foreign diplomats, who place wreaths on the tombs. All boats on the Potomac toll their bells when passing.

Graphic Materials 5 - lantern slides (box)

Extent

Black and white photographic image of the excavation of the summer house vault. According to the 1936 Minutes of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association the purpose of the excavation is as follows: Immediate removal of the remaining portions of the foundations of the Summer House, which was not an original building, for these obstruct further construction research. This will help to determine the type of superstructure which originally covered the vault

Excavation of the area behind the vault to determine the original grade level, and then grade in the immediate vicinity according to the original grade determined.

Evidence of delamination of the emulsion from glass substrate (as of 10/24/2023).
