Biographical/Historical Information

A Faculty Senate, also known as an academic senate, is a governing body that is typically the supreme academic authority for the institution that is made up of members of the faculty from various units within the university. Usually, the Senate creates university academic policy that applies to the university while keeping in mind that any policy created must fit into policy made by the university system by adhering to accreditation standards etc... The Faculty Senate meets periodically with an agenda and keep minutes of the meetings. The Senate normally has several committees, both standing and task specific, which are assigned particular areas of policy to work with.

The Faculty Senate at Radford University is made up of an Executive Council as well as representatives from the various colleges in the university. the Artis College of Science and Technology, College of Business and Economics, College of Education and Development, College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences, College of Visual and Performing Arts, McConnell Library and Waldron College of Health and Human Services all have representatives to the Faculty Senate at Radford University.

Scope and Content

The RU Faculty Senate Papers contains reports, minutes, and other documentation related to the Radford University Faculty Senate and previous previous internal governance bodies.
