Biography

Aubrey Ellis Strobe, an American lawyer and Democratic politician, was born on October 2, 1873, at Amherst, Virginia, to Henry Aubrey Strobe (1844-1898) and Mildred Powell Ellis Strobe (1854-1898). Strobe graduated from Kenmore High School at Amherst, and attended college at the University of Mississippi, Washington and Lee (1891-1892), and studied law at the University of Virginia, 1898-1899. Strobe served as the principal of Ridgeway High School, Ridgeway, South Carolina, and Kenmore University High School, Amherst County, Virginia. The house "Kenmore," was a colonial brick home built by Samuel Meredith Garland, whose granddaughter, Mildred Ellis, married Henry Aubrey Strobe. Kenmore Farm became a preparatory high school operated by Henry Aubrey Strobe between 1872 and 1889, and 1896-1899. Henry Aubrey Strobe also served as the first president of Clemson University, 1890-1893. Aubrey Ellis Strobe became principal and continued the school for a few years when his father fell ill.

Upon the death of his parents and being the eldest of the remaining family, Strobe decided to study law, passed the bar examination and began practicing law in Amherst County and Lynchburg. His first law partner was Stickley Tucker (1879-1912), the oldest son of Cornelius S. Tucker and Sallie Stickley Tucker. Aubrey E. Strobe and John William Stickley Tucker signed articles of agreement on December 31, 1902, becoming partners in the practice of law, pertaining to the counties of Amherst and Nelson, Virginia under the name of Strobe and Tucker, beginning January 1, 1903, with the general office at Amherst Court House. This practice was distinct from the law practice of Aubrey Strobe in Lynchburg, Virginia. Later a memorandum of partnership agreement between Aubrey E. Strobe and J. Easley Edmunds, Jr. took effect on March 1, 1923 under the firm name of Strobe and Edmunds, with Strobe as the senior partner.

Strobe represented Amherst County and Nelson County in the Virginia Senate, from 1906-1912, and 1916-1920 and was the elector at large in Virginia in 1928. He was an active member of the Democratic Party in Virginia and a popular public speaker supporting Democratic candidates during elections. During World War I, he joined the United States Army serving with the Judge Advocate General Department of the Officers' Reserve Corps. Strobe was commissioned April 23, 1918 as Major Judge Advocate and then promoted to Lieutenant Colonel Judge Advocate May 15, 1919. While in service, he was on active duty at Washington, D.C. from May 15, 1918 until January 1919, and from February through August 1919, served with the American Expeditionary Forces at Chaumont and Paris, France. Strobe was discharged on August 12, 1919.

Perhaps best known as the lawyer who wrote the statute known as the Virginia Sterilization Act of 1924, Strobe was also a long-time legal advisor to the Board of the State Colony for Epileptics and the Feeble-Minded. The Colony was located in Madison Heights near Lynchburg, Virginia, and authorized by a bill written in 1906 by Aubrey Strobe in collaboration with Dr. Albert Priddy, who served as the first superintendent, and Joseph DeJarnette, superintendent at Western State Hospital in Staunton, Virginia.

He argued the case of Buck v. Bell before the Supreme Court of the United States in 1927. Carrie Buck was a young woman from Charlottesville who Dr. Priddy petitioned to have sterilized. Priddy died during the litigation and his successor as superintendent of the Virginia State Colony for Epileptics and the Feeble Minded, Dr. John Bell, took up the cause. The Supreme Court upheld the statute instituting compulsory sterilization of the unfit "for the protection and health of the state" on May 2, 1927. The Supreme Court majority opinion was written by Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.

Strobe was also a judge in the Corporation Court of Lynchburg (1933-1944). Strobe died May 17, 1946 following his retirement from the bench due to poor health.

Biographical notes on Aubrey E. Strobe siblings, wives and offspring is described in this subnote.

Aubrey E. Strobe was the eldest child in his family and had seven siblings, six sisters and one brother. These include: Leslie Strobe (1875- ?); Grace Strobe (1877-1933); Ida Strobe Berry (1878-1963) married Taylor Berry in 1898; Lucille Garland Strobe (1882-1954) married William Ralph Smith in 1911; Edith Strobe (1882-?) married Dr. Howard Lilienthal; Mildred Strobe Vandegrift (1886-1952); and Dr. Basil E. Strobe (1888-1952), who served as a 1st Lt. in the Medical Corp in World War I.

Aubrey Ellis Strobe married first Rebekah Davies Brown Strobe (1874-1922) of Arlington, Virginia, on June 4, 1903, and second, Louisa Hubbard Strobe Smith (1896-1989) of Forest, Virginia, in 1923.

Children of Aubrey E. Strobe and Rebekah Brown Strobe include: William Lewis Strobe (1904-1906), Mildred Ellis Strobe (1906-?) who married William Tucker Battle, Rebekah Elizabeth Strobe (1913-1998) who married St. George Tucker Lee in 1936, Aubrey Ellis Strobe, Jr. (1908-1970), and John Thompson Brown Strobe (1910-1971). Hildreth Hubbard Strobe (1926-2016) was the son of Aubrey E. Strobe and Louis Hubbard Strobe.

Scope and Contents

Aubrey E. Strobe (1861-1969, 88 cubic feet) was a Virginia lawyer, state senator and eugenics advocate who drafted the Virginia sterilization law and brought Buck vs. Bell to the Supreme Court. This collection consists of his personal and professional papers concerning his family, law practice, army service, political and legislative activities as a member of the Virginia Senate, the Virginia Democratic Party and the Progressive movement, and as a co-owner of the newspaper, The Amherst Progress. The bulk of the papers consists of the files of the law firms of Strobe and Tucker and Strobe and Edwards, containing correspondence, court records, trial transcripts, exhibits, estate settlements, debt collections, and various legal documents.

It also includes some speeches, bills, and correspondence with Edwin A. Alderman in the political and legislative papers in series four concerning the proposal to establish a coordinate Woman's College at the University of Virginia and the budgetary needs of the University of Virginia in the legislature. There are also letters in the family correspondence from his cousin, Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton (1876-1968), an American physician and surgeon, concerning her trips abroad and her autobiographical books.

There are three files in this collection entirely concerned with Strobe's role in eugenics and sterilization in Virginia and they are: Carrie Buck v. Dr. J.H. Bell, 1925 June 1 (Box 9); State Colony for Epileptics and the Feeble-Minded, 1908, 1920-1922 (Box 42); and Sterilization and Eugenics, 1924-1947 (Box 159). Much of the other material is scattered among his legal practice alphabetical correspondence files, under the last name of correspondents such as William F. Drewry, superintendent of Central State Hospital; Dr. Albert Priddy, first superintendent of the Virginia Colony for Epileptics and the Feeble-minded; his successor, Dr. John H. Bell; and Dr. J.S. DeJarnette, superintendent of Western State Hospital or chronologically in the political and legislative series.

Other topics with significant material in these papers include: the American Legion; The Amherst Progress (for additional information about the newspaper and the partnership with Tucker, see Strobe's incoming legal practice correspondence files under "T" containing letters from Stickly Tucker and Strobe's outgoing legal practice correspondence files under "S"); Judge Advocate General material; Kenmore High School, Amherst County, Virginia; the Lynchburg Jail; Marshal Lodge Memorial Hospital, where Strobe served on the Board of Directors; and political and legislative material.

Arrangement

The legal correspondence, both incoming to the law office of Strode and Tucker and the outgoing correspondence from Strode and Tucker, are arranged alphabetically within year(s) by the last name of the correspondent or the chief name of the business; This system appears to have lasted through 1917, coinciding with the beginning of Strode's Judge Advocate General service. After that, the clear delineation between Strode's own correspondence and correspondence coming into the office is not defined and the two types are generally interfiled together, alphabetically by year(s).

Scope and Contents

The correspondence of Strodes first wife, Rebekah Brown Strode, has been included in the Strode family correspondence before their marriage. The correspondence of his second wife, Louisa Dexter Hubbard Strode, before their marriage is included in the Hubbard family correspondence and with the Strode family afterwards, 1924 on.

Arrangement

Family correspondence was sometimes found within Strode's legal correspondence files and sometimes elsewhere. As much as could be determined, all family correspondence has been separated and arranged by year.

Biographical / Historical

"The Amherst Progress" was described by Strode as a "democratic, country, weekly newspaper" with a circulation of between seven and eight hundred subscribers in 1914. The paper was established in 1904 by Stickley Tucker (1879-1912) the editor-in-chief and business manager, and was published until his ill health and death.

Processing Information

This folder has been created by the processor for the convenience of students and other researchers. It was not a file created by Aubrey Strode. It does not claim to be an exhaustive resource for the topic in this collection, but a starting point.

Scope and Contents

This folder includes a letter from Dr. Howard Lilienthal, brother-in-law of Strode, thanking Strode for his sterilization paper, attached to the letter, which Strode had forwarded to him. Dr. Lilienthal gives his own view on sterilization as a medical man (February 16, 1925).
