Scope and Contents

The University Archives Artifact Collection is an artificial collection of artifacts and memorabilia documenting and related to the College of William and Mary. Artifacts received by the University Archives that are not part of the records of an individual university department or personal papers are made a part of the University Archives Artifact Collection.

Images of a growing number of artifacts are available through the SCRC's Flickr account at

<http://www.flickr.com/photos/scrc/sets/72157601972522069/>

The University Archives Artifact Collection, from 18th century spectacles to a 20th century plastic frisbee, gives a fascinating tangible view of life and are a rich supplement to the paper records in the SCRC. Most of these highly diverse items are representative of some group or activity at the College, but some are in the SCRC because they were owned by a William and Mary-affiliated person. Most artifacts were donated by alumni or their families.

Twentieth-century materials comprise the bulk of the artifacts collection, including athletic memorabilia, plaques, and general mementos of life as a student. From such items as freshman initiation beanies ("ducquot; caps) and paddles it is easy to see that students have always been interested in more than just the academic side of college life. Well-represented in the collection is 20th century clothing, including women's gym bloomers, t-shirts, belt buckles, athletic jackets, academic regalia, and baseball uniforms.

The University Archives is also the keeper of such College of William and Mary treasures as the College and Marischal Maces that lead all formal convocations, the Rector's and Chancellor's badges and chains of office, and two of the original stones which marked the boundaries of the College. The maces and badges are usually on display in the SCRC in the Earl Gregg Swem Library.

Separated Materials:

A photograph of a member of the Queen's Guard was separated from Acc. 2009.274 and transferred to the University Archives Photograph Collection (UA 8) on 6/30/2009.

Two magnets featuring the Spring 2005 and Winter 2006-2007 home game schedules at William and Mary were pulled from the Athletics Department Records (UA 181) and added to this collection on 7/27/2011.

Various awards and plaques were taken from the Athletics Department Records (UA 181) , Acc. 2011.535, and were transferred to this collection on 8/15/2011.

Acc. 2011.384-400 and Acc. 2011.718 were previously part of the University Archives Subject File Collection (UA 9) and were added to this collection on 12/20/2011.

Related Materials:

Consult the collections of university departments, organizations, and individuals for related material. Images of some artifacts are available through the SCRC's Flickr account at <http://www.flickr.com/photos/scrc/>.

Description of Subordinate Components

Built Environment Artifacts

Unit ID id212356

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561156

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to define space for human activities or to be used as components of space-defining artifacts.

Building Components

Unit ID id212357

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561166

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created as part of a building's fabric. Although building components are distinct objects, they function as parts of larger structures rather than as independent units. Building components can be separate, distinct, and generally interchangeable structural, functional, or decorative parts of buildings such as beams, sinks, or architectural ornaments. This classification also includes architectural samples integral to buildings, such as wall sections, staircases, or porches, as well as certain whole-structure building system components such as ventilators or furnaces. Excluded from this classification are parts of buildings that are not integral parts of the structure, such as furnishings or lighting devices, which are included in the Furnishings category.

Architectural Spaces

Unit ID id212358

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561261

Scope and Contents

Structures and other artifacts originally created to serve as space-defining internal or external architectural building components.

Barrier Elements

Unit ID id212359

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561262

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to block passage, prohibit movement, shield dangerous situations, protect or cover openings, or otherwise serve as barriers in or on structures.

Construction Materials

Unit ID id212360

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561263

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created for use in the construction of structures. This sub-classification includes masonry units, such as bricks or stone, and ancillary materials such as plaster, flashing, or lath.

Muscarelle Museum groundbreaking ceremony bricks

Unit ID id16483

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561542

Unit Date 1981

Scope and Contents

Scope and Contents

2- mounted bricks belonging to Mr. Mrs. John Bruce Bredin, Mr. Mrs. John R. Curtis, Jr., and one with no name. The groundbreaking for the Muscarelle Museum occurred on November 6, 1981. Located in BG S5. UA 1999.079

House of Alpha Wooden Slat Fragment

Unit ID id130661

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561543

Unit Date circa 1900

Scope and Contents

Scope and Contents

Wooden house siding shingle with remnants of grey paint. Shingle from a house constructed in 1900 at 421 North Albany Street in Ithaca NY, where the seven Alpha Phi Alpha founders gathered to study and draw up plans for the first African American college fraternity. The Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity launched a campaign in 2009 to restore the house by 2012. Shingle measures 6.5" (length) x 2" (width). circa 1900. Image available at <http://www.flickr.com/photos/scrc/6967380824/>. Gift of Alpha Phi Alpha, Kappa Pi Chapter. Located in BG S5. UA 2011.584.06

Conveyance Devices

Unit ID id212361

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561264

Scope and Contents

Artifacts that are integral to structures and were originally created to transport humans, goods, or materials from one location in the structure to another. This sub-classification also includes equipment and accessories that serve as parts of building conveyance systems.

Door and Window Elements

Unit ID id212362

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561265

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to serve as doors, windows(whether fixed or moveable), or components thereof, or to act as structural elements to complete openings. They may serve as coverings, operating mechanism components, or accessories for doors or windows. This sub-classification does not include finish hardware such as knockers, kickplates, sash lifts, or shutterdogs.

Environmental Control Elements

Unit ID id212363

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561266

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to modify the environment of structures through mechanical means, whether as individual units or as a part of systems. Environmental control components regulate heating, cooling, humidification, or ventilation. Portable equipment and equipment meant to heat or cool part of a structure are listed in Temperature Control Equipment.

Finish Hardware

Unit ID id212364

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561267

Scope and Contents

Artifacts, usually made of metal, originally created to be visible, functional, and often decorative elements for the interior or exterior of buildings. This sub-classification includes doorway accessories such as doorknobs, window accessories such as sash lifts or shutter dogs, and other artifacts such as brackets, strap hinges, or escutcheons.

Plumbing and Drainage Elements

Unit ID id212365

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561268

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to serve as built-in receptacles for waste, as vessel or spaces for containing or dispensing water for sanitary needs, or as a means of dispensing water for drinking. Plumbing and Drainage Elements also treat water, facilitate or regulate the movement of water and sewage withing strucutres, or transport unwanted water from one locationt to another, either through mechanical or gravitational means.

Roof Elements

Unit ID id212366

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561269

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created as rooftop structures or structural elements or as architectural ornamentation for roofs.

Stair Elements

Unit ID id212367

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561270

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created as structural or decorative components of staircases, whether rough and concealed or decorative and visible.

Supporting Elements

Unit ID id212368

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561271

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to serve as structural elements for walls, ceilings, or floors. Some supporting elements may also serve as architectural ornamentation.

Surface Elements

Unit ID id212369

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561272

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created as finishiing elements in buildings, whether indoor or outdoor. Surface elements serve as permanent wall, floor, ceiling, or roof coverings, or as decorative trim.

Site Features

Unit ID id212370

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561167

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created as distinct elements associated with sites, buildings, or parts of larger structures. Rather than functioning simply as parts of larger strucutres, site features are independent entities that complement other strucutres. This classification includes such artifacts as birdbaths, flagpoles, gates, and fences.

Boundary Stones

Unit ID id4752

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561273

Unit Date circa 1694

Scope and Contents

Scope and Contents

2 - For the College site a tract of 330 acres was purchased for £170 from Captain Thomas Ballard on December 20, 1693. Two of the boundary stones, erected to mark the property, are part of the collection. Note: From September through November 4, 2007, one of the boundary stones was on exhibit at the Muscarelle Museum of Art. Image available at <http://www.flickr.com/photos/scrc/1520125522/in/photostream/>. Located in BG S5.

Structures

Unit ID id212371

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561168

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to provide or define a space for human activities. Structures may be permanent, portable, climate-controlled, or open-air, and can be used for a variety of purposes including ceremonial, agricultural, recreational, commercial, cultural, civic, industrial, and social. Architectural samples, integral to buildings such as wall sections, as well as separable, distinct, and interchangeable components, such as doorknobs or widow sashes, are included in Building Components.

Agricultural Structures

Unit ID id212372

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561274

Scope and Contents

Structures originally created for such agricultural purposes as housing animals, storing grains and farm implements, practicing animal husbandry, and processing plant and animal products. Structures used in the commercial processing of agricultural products are included in Industrial Structures. Agricultural Structures are not for public use or human habitation.

Ceremonial Structures

Unit ID id212373

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561275

Scope and Contents

Structures originally created for ceremonial activities such as conducting religious services or preparing or housing the remains of the dead. Such structures may also provide space for devotional activities, such as those associated with holy objects, or offer shelter for transformative practices or traditional rituals such as tea ceremonies. This sub-classification does not include structures for human habitation or for ceremonial activities conducted by social organizations.

Civic and Social Structures

Unit ID id212374

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561276

Scope and Contents

Structures originally created to be used by governmental entities or community organizations for such purposes as governance activities, mail distribution, public safety, or social activities. This sub-classification also includes structures used by trade, fraternal, professional, or special-interest groups or associations for such organizational purposes as conducting meetings or ceremonies or housing group-related artifacts such as regalia or records.

Commercial Structures

Unit ID id212375

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561277

Scope and Contents

Structures originally created for the selling, exchanging, or housing of goods and services. This sub-classification includes service establishments, and mercantile buildings.

Cultural and Recreational Structures

Unit ID id212376

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561278

Scope and Contents

Structures originally created for cultural or recreational activities. Included in this sub-classification are structures that provide exhibition space for music, fine arts, dance, drama, or collections of objects, flora, or fauna displayed for public benefit. Also included are structures that provide space for sporting or entertainment activities, usually for groups and occasionally for individuals.

Defense Structures

Unit ID id212377

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561279

Scope and Contents

Structures originally created for such defensive purposes as storing armament and munitions, sheltering personnel, or providing fortified observational posts capable of facilitating or resisting attacks.

Dwellings

Unit ID id212378

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561280

Scope and Contents

Residential structures originally created for long-term habitation rather than temporary housing. Dwellings are considered homes, places where domestic activities are conducted and personal effects are stored.

Hydraulic Structures

Unit ID id212379

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561281

Scope and Contents

Structures originally created to collect, convey, regulate, or contain water for distribution, flood control, or power generation.

Industrial Structures

Unit ID id212380

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561282

Scope and Contents

Structures and complexes originally created for the extraction and processing of raw materials, the generation of power, the manufacture of goods, or the housing of industrial machinery.

Institutional Structures

Unit ID id212381

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561283

Scope and Contents

Buildings originally created for such institutional purposes as health and welfare services, educational instruction, or corrections.

Outbuildings

Unit ID id212382

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561284

Scope and Contents

Buildings originally created for specific domestic activities such as baking or washing or for the storage of residential equipment and materials needed for domestic activities. Outbuildings are generally secondary structures adjacent to or nearby a dwelling or farm complex.

Transportation Structures

Unit ID id212383

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561285

Scope and Contents

Structures and complexes originally created to facilitate the transportation of people and things. Such structures provide embarkation and debarkation points, allow passage from one point to another, house conveyance equipment, or serve as collection facilities for fares or tolls.

Other Structures

Unit ID id212384

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561286

Scope and Contents

Structures that do not meet the definitions of this classification's other sub-classifications.

Furnishings

Unit ID id212385

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561157

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to facilitate human activity and to provide for the physical needs of people, generally by offering comfort, convenience, or protection. Clothing is excluded from this category as it addresses only the needs of a specific individual. Furnishings are not artifacts used as active agents in other processes, such as artifacts used as tools or equipment; they passively enable human activity.

Bedding

Unit ID id212386

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561169

Scope and Contents

Artifacts, usually soft furnishings, originally created to provide support for sleeping or to accessorize a bed. This classification does not include beds and bed components, which are included in Furniture.

Unit ID id228696

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561288

Unit Date circa 1930s-1940s

Scope and Contents

Scope and Contents

One diamond shaped felt pillow with a beige front and a gold back. The front of the pillow features "WM" in gold, old English felt letters. The front also features a gold ribbon running throughout the edges of the beige front. There are also gold felt strips measuring approximately 2.5in. (length) as the fringe of the pillow. The pillow measures approximately 1ft. 5in. x 1ft. 5in. The pillow is in poor condition. There is a long loose thread and hanging lace component attached to the lace piece at the tip of the pillow above the "WM." There is also an approximately 0.125in. black stain and an approximately 2in. black stain on the bottom tip of the pillow below the "WM." There is also black staining on the lace bow in that same area as well as some moderate fraying of the lace material. There is also a 3.5in. missing lace component on the top right side of the pillow and another 3in. missing lace component on the bottom right of the pillow. There is severe fraying on the disconnected lace fragments as well as some black staining on the bottom right disconnected lace. Finally, there is a small black stain on the back of the pillow and the some felt fringes have tattered pieces. Transferred by Alumni Association. UA 2011.498.12

WM Class of 1919 Blanket

Unit ID id229035

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561289

Unit Date circa 1919

Scope and Contents

Scope and Contents

A grey-green rough-texture blanket which has "WM/ '19" sown on the front in gold felt letters. "VEW" is also sown on the bottom left of the front of the blanket in gold felt letters. The blanket measures approximately 6ft. 11in. (length) x 5ft. 2in. (width) and is in good condition. Both seams at the top and bottom of the blanket are completely unraveled with remnants of red loose thread on both ends (bottom left: 4.5in. of red loose thread, bottom right: 2in. and 7.5in. of red loose thread; top left: 7.5in. of red loose thread, top right: 11in. of red loose thread). There is a 0.5in. hole at the bottom left of the blanket above "VEW." Finally there is some wear and tear near the right of the " '19." Transferred by Alumni Association. UA 2011.498.17

William and Mary Felt Pillow

Unit ID id99406

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561290

Unit Date circa 1940-1965

Scope and Contents

One rectangular green wool felt pillow with grey trim and orange lettering. Pillow backing is larger than the centered front piece, with the addition fabric cut into approximately 1in. wide strips for fringe. Pillow front is sewn to the backing with a piece of grey decorative trim featuring a stepped triangle pattern. 'WILLIAM / AND / MARY' is sewn to the pillow front in orange felt letters 1.5in. or .75in. high. Pillow is 19in. (length) x 13.5in. (width) x 1.5in. wide. Pillow is in good condition with minor pitting/holes from insect damage on back and front. One piece of fringe in upper left corner has several holes and brown discoloration. Another piece of fringe on the lower left side has 1.5in. tear in the middle. Sticking appears to be very secure with only a few exposed thread pieces on the back. SCRC Purchase. Located in Textiles S1 SS8. UA 2011.551

Furniture

Unit ID id212388

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561171

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to answer the physical requirements and comforts of people in their living and work spaces. This classification includes desks, tables, beds, chairs, and outdoor furniture, but it excludes appliances and tools such as washing machines and ladders.

Furniture Sets

Unit ID id212389

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561294

Scope and Contents

Matched groupings of artifacts originally created to meet the basic furniture needs of a specific area such as a nursery or bedroom. Note: Other terms also may be used to represent specific set components from other Furniture sub-classifications, e.g., Seating Furniture, Supporting Furniture.

Seating Furniture

Unit ID id212390

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561295

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to allow one or more persons to sit upon or support a portion of their body, as is the case of foot-stools. Seating furniture includes both indoor and outdoor furniture and may be stationary pieces such as slipper chairs or allow for some movement such as rocking chairs. This classification includes upright furniture that adjusts to a reclining position, but non-adjustable furniture that is designed for reclining is included in Sleeping and Reclining Furniture.

Sleeping and Reclining Furniture

Unit ID id212391

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561296

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to allow one or more persons to lay down or recline. Component parts of beds such as headboards and footboards are also included in this sub-classification.

Storage and Display Furniture

Unit ID id212392

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561297

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to store, protect, and sometimes display items by means of an encasement with such features as shelves, drawers, cubbyholes, and doors. This sub-classification does not include furniture created to store food, which is listed in Food Storage Equipment.

Glass, Plastics and Clayworking TE

Unit ID id212476

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561186

Scope and Contents

Tools, equipment, and supplies originally created for fabricating objects from homogenous, complex compounds, such as glass, clay, rubber, synthetic resins, plastics, or waxes. This classification also includes the tools, equipment, and supplies used for producing such homogenous, complex compounds. These compounds differ from other materials because they generally require elaborate processing at some point during their use. As compounds, they differ from other processed materials such as leather because they are not discrete units; they differ from aggregate materials such as masonry because of their homogeneity and their need for elaborate processing.

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created for the expression and communication of ideas, values, or attitudes through images, symbols, or abstractions. Art often reflects aesthetic pleasure or demonstrates created skills and dexterity. Art can be uniquely created or it can be produced in a medium that allows many duplicates to be made. Terms from this classification, whether the generic "Artwork" term or more specific terms, may be used in addition to terms from other classifications that index objects by other, practical functions (e.g., "Vase" and "Artwork," "Pillow" and "Embroidery," "Mocock" and "Quillwork," "Moccasin" and "Bedwork").

5-50 Yugoslavian Dinara. The bills are blue and feature a detail from one of Ivan Meštrović's sculptures on the front. Ivan Meštrović was a famous Croatian sculptor. The number "50" is also printed on the front to the right. The number "50" is also featured on the back of the bills in the center within a circle with people-figures holding hands. According to the U.S. Department of the Treasury Treasury Reporting Rates as of March 31, 1981, 1 Yugoslavian Dinar was equal to $20.60. The bank notes belonged to Armand J. Galfo, U.S. Air Force Reserves officer and Assistant Dean of the School of Education at the College of William and Mary between 1965 and 1966. The bills measure approximately 5.25in. (length) x 2.5in. (width) and are in fair to poor condition. All the bills have dirt stains on them and have various tears along their edges. Bill a is in fair condition with only its top right and left corners bent and creases along the depiction of the Meštrović relief and in the center. Bill b is in poor condition and has its top left and bottom right corners bent as well as a diagonal crease at the top left side and in the center and right side of the bill. There are also red stains on the back of bill b on the right. Bill c is in poor condition and its top and bottom left corners are completely folded. There is also an approximately 1.25in. stain in the center of the back of the bill starting at the bottom of the bill and ending at the number "50." Bill d is in poor condition and its top left corner is completely folded. There are also small red stains on the top and bottom edge of the bill on the back. Finally, bill e is in poor condition with all of its corners folded (left corners folded back and right corners folded over the front). Transferred from the Armand J. Galfo papers. Personal Symbols

Unit ID id212694

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561237

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created to communicate a particular personal belief, opinion, achievement, status, rank, occupation, membership, office, or identity. This classification includes articles of adornment or clothing worn primarily for their symbolism; these objects may be assigned additional terms from Category 3 to ensure appropriate cross-indexing. A personal symbol differs from a ceremonial artifact in that it expresses individual ideas, not the ideas of a group, or it communicates the relationship of individuals to a group.

Scope and Contents

1-silver medallion that features the William and Mary cipher at the top and the William and Mary Coat of Arms at the bottom connected to the cipher by a silver hook. There is a black lanyard connected to the top of the cipher by which the presidents would wear the medallion. The medallion was crafted by Charles Eugene ("Mike") Stousland, Jr., class of 1941. Stousland was Chair of the Department of Architecture at Miami University of Ohio and crafted jewelry and small sculpture in silver as a hobby. For many years, he created jewelry featuring the William and Mary cipher for the Alumni Association to sell to raise funds for the organization. The first photograph of the medallion in use seems to be from Charter Day in 1978, when President Thomas Ashley Graves wore the medallion. William and Mary presidents wore the medallion regularly at Commencement, Convocation, and Charter Day until it was retired in February 2013. Similar medallions were given to His Royal Highness Prince Charles during his visit to the College in 1981 and Dean of Students J. Wilfred Lambert (class of 1927) when he retired. The medallion measures approximately 6in. (length) and the lanyard measures approximately 18in. The medallion is in fair condition. It has suffered from severe tarnishing on the front. There is an approximately 1in. white smear on the lower right side of the back of the medallion. In addition, there are scratches and scuff marks all over the medallion. Designed and Donated by Charles Eugene ("Mike") Stousland, Jr. circa 1978. Located in UA Metals. UA 2014.111.01

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/561241

Scope and Contents

Scope and Contents

Artifacts originally created for physical activities that are often competitive. This classification includes equipment used in all forms of athletic games, including individual and team sports. Sports and their specialized equipment have proliferated over the years. Object groupings in this classification focus on the most popular sports while not attempting to be encyclopedic. Object terms seek to cover the forms that are the most familiar and most likely to be part of museum collections. If a specific term is not listed, consider using the broader "Gear" term. terms covering practice, warm-up, and exercise equipment can be found in Recreational Devices. Note: The word "Gear," employed in many of the primary object terms below, suggests a plural connotation even though Nomenclature object terms are in the singular. The use of "Gear" as an object term (rather than as a sub-classification) provides the cataloger with terms that allow the indexing of an unlisted object or an object whose term is listed elsewhere with its associated sport.
