Scope and Contents

Papers and photos collected by a historian of journalism, Don E. Carter, about J. Montgomery Curtis, a renowned journalist and newspaper expert from Elm Grove, West Virginia. Curtis was best known as a long time director of the New York-based American Press Institute which was associated with Columbia University. The American Press Institute functioned to offer advice and criticism to journalists and news publications. The last part of his career was spent in Miami working for the Knight newspaper chain, later Knight Ridder newspapers, as a vice president and in-house critic. Most of the collection is comprised of correspondence with colleagues, biographical notes about Curtis, and critiques of practices in the newspaper business. There is much correspondence with John S. Knight evaluating the newspapers he owned, with James H. Ottaway who was a newspaper owner and long time chairman of the board of the American Press Institute, and with Don E. Carter and Malcolm F. Mallette about the history of the American Press Institute.

Scope and Contents

This series includes correspondence with assorted newspapers, authors, and others regarding the American Press Institute (API), newspapers, and other topics.

Occasionally, a note from the donor, Don E. Carter, will appear in the title in parentheses highlighting subjects or topics of note or sharing historical significance.

Miscellaneous (includes mostly correspondence, some clippings, and other items regarding mostly critique of newspapers, some on history of the API, among other topics; evidence of notes, annotations, and highlighting on letters suggests that Don Carter used these materials for researching "Seminar; The Story of the API")
