Biographical / Historical

Hu Maxwell (September 22, 1860-August 20, 1927), local and state historian and forester, was born in St. George, Virginia, now Tucker County, West Virginia. He was educated at home by his mother, Sarah Bonnifield Maxwell, until he was 15. He later graduated from Weston Academy (1880) and won an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, but he did not complete the course.

Maxwell returned to West Virginia, where he taught school and learned the timbering business. He became editor and part owner of the Tucker County Pioneer newspaper and devoted much of the rest of his life to writing and publishing.

His histories include those for the counties of Barbour (1899), Hampshire (1897), Randolph (1898), and Tucker (1884). He contributed two short articles to History of the Mingo Indians (1921). With Richard E. Fast, he wrote The History and Government of West Virginia (1906), and he co-authored the three-volume classic, West Virginia and Its People (1913), with Thomas Condit Miller.

Maxwell combined his knowledge of timbering with his passion for study and traveled throughout the country conducting surveys for the U.S. Forest Service. In addition to government bulletins, he wrote Idyls of the Golden Shore (1889), a collection of poems about California. He also published A Tree History of the United States (1923).
